BRENDA KIDERA has been a professional artist since 1983 and instructor since 1997. She has been working in watercolor for over 35 years. An Artist member of BWS since 1987, she is also a juried member of the Potomac Valley Watercolorists, the Washington Society of Landscape Painters, and Society of Animal Artists among other organizations. Her work has been featured in Watercolor Magic and has won numerous awards. She has exhibited widely and served as a juror in several exhibitions.

HANDS AND FEET are parts of the human body that are often considered especially challenging to draw and paint. Do you find yourself avoiding or faking appendages in your work? This workshop will take the fear out of drawing and painting extremities. We will explore the anatomy and form of these often-neglected areas of the figure. First we will concentrate on how to draw hands and feet using simple block shapes then learn to paint them monochromatically using a controlled method. All reference material will be provided, but bring your own hands and feet to work from too.
